Policies	• Within 30 days after the domain is created, anyone can open (and pay) an objection for the domain. From that moment the domain is in dispute and cannot be updated or transferred. The registry will investigate and solve it in one of the following outcomes: • The domain is kept in registrar that create the domain if the resolution is in favor of the original registrant. • The domain is transferred to nic.cl if the resolution favors the objector, then nic.cl invites the objector by email to take control of the domain and he can transfer it wherever he wants. To take control, the objector must have an account at nic.cl. • Note: A .cl domain holders can only get a "certificate of entitlement", if it is strictly necessary. Please contact our support department in that case.
Registration agreement	The registry requires that a registration agreement is in place between the provider and the domain holder. The text of this registration agreement and any required supplements is the following: • General registration agreement

Due to the regular changes in registry rules and configuration or missing information from registry side, and despite our effort to keep our knowledge base up-to-date, information in the knowledge base may be outdated or incorrect. If you encounter some issue, please report it through the "HotJar" feedback collector on the bottom right, or (if it is blocked by your browser) by clicking the "Submit a request" link below. No rights can be derived from the information in this knowledge base. If there is discrepancy between the knowledge base and the process in Openprovider, the process in Openprovider is leading.
